

Lafferty found guilty of murder

Jurors still to determine sentence

By LESLIE M. GANDOLA
Senior Reporter

Dan Lafferty was declared guilty of first-degree murder Thursday after eight hours of jury deliberation.

Lafferty, who refused assistance of counsel, showed no emotion as the court clerk read verdicts of guilty on the six counts with which Lafferty was charged. He later, however, smiled at jury members.

Sentencing will take place after a penalty phase which begins today in the 4th District Court.

Capital trials are actually bifurcated or have two trials, said Wayne Watson, chief Utah County deputy attorney. "This is just the first step in a two-step process," he said.

The first trial is to determine guilt or innocence. The second trial, or penalty phase, uses the same jury to determine a sentence after reviewing aggravating and mitigating circumstances. Such circumstances are presented to show why a more severe or less severe sentence should be imposed.

"The death penalty can be imposed only when all 12 of the jurors so vote," said Judge J. Robert Bullock. If there is not a unanimous decision, he added, the court imposes a penalty life imprisonment.

Watson said he was concerned about the length of the jury deliberation but declined to make comment about the outcome until the trial is over. "I don't want to say anything that would prejudice the trial," he said.

"I feel the jury has come back with the verdict we asked them to return," said Detective Gary Caldwell, American Fork Police Department. Caldwell, in charge of the investigation of the case, said he had spent more than 80 hours in the last week putting together and going through evidence with Watson.

Lafferty has been convicted of murdering Brenda and 15-month-old Erica Lafferty, his sister-in-law and niece. The two victims were found murdered in their American Fork home on July 24.

He also was convicted of conspiring to kill Chloe Low and Richard Stowe and on two counts of aggravated burglary.

Low is a former Relief Society president and Stowe is a state president in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Their names were listed on a "revelation" with Brenda and Erica Lafferty calling for their removal . . . in rapid succession."

According to the revelation, the four people named were thwarting the work of the Lord in the development of Zion.

Bullock told the jurors not to talk to anyone, including the media, about the trial. Media personnel were warned not to approach jurors.

Bullock also told members of the defense and prosecution not to discuss the trial with anyone until it is concluded. He added Lafferty, as his own counsel, is also restrained.

Security surrounding the trial has been extreme throughout the week, but extra precautions were taken Thursday because of information received in the last few days, according to security officials. No threats were made but safeguards were being taken against certain people in the building, officials said.

Following the trial, Lafferty was literally run out of the building by security officials and followed by a frenzy of reporters and photographers. He was quickly led into a white van and driven away.

"It (the trial) has affected me and my family more than anything I've ever done in my life," said Caldwell. He added that a lot of people around the country will be relieved by the verdict, including family members.

Although there has been a lot of stress in the case, Caldwell said he has received tremendous cooperation from agencies all over the United States. "It will be nice to relax for a little bit," said Caldwell.

Also charged with the six felony counts were Ron Lafferty, Ricky Martin Knapp and Charles "Chip" Carnes. Carnes and Knapp pleaded guilty earlier to three of the lesser charges and are presently serving five-year-to-life sentences. The other charges are expected to be dropped in exchange for their testimony against the Laffertys.

Ron Lafferty is still in the Utah State Hospital undergoing competency evaluations after he attempted suicide in the Utah County jail. His trial is pending the results of the evaluations.

This week's trial has gone much faster than anticipated, according to Watson. The trial, which Watson labeled "bizarre," was originally expected to last two weeks but testimony concluded after only two days.

Dan Lafferty is being escorted by Utah County Sheriff Deputies into the courtroom just before he was convicted of two counts of first degree murder in the deaths of his sister-in-law and her baby. Lafferty is now awaiting sentencing.

Social Security's 'off the table'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans and Democrats in Congress showed little enthusiasm Thursday for curtailing Social Security cost-of-living increases, despite President Reagan's statement that he would "look at" such a plan if the House and Senate initiated it to help cut budget deficits.

Social Security is "off the table" when it comes to possible spending cuts, House GOP Leader Robert Michel of Illinois said through an aide.

The president "seems to be under some strange illusion" that such a call will arise in Congress, added House Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas.

The new chairman of the House Budget Committee, Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., left the door open to changes, but just barely. "Everything should be on the table," he said, adding quickly that he would be "strongly reluctant" to make revisions in the program. Gray said he believed his view reflected those of other House Democrats.

Senior Republicans in the Senate have suggested scrapping next year's cost-of-living increase for Social Security recipients as part of a comprehensive spending freeze that would help slash budget deficits.

The proposal received at least a modest boost Wednesday night when Reagan told reporters at a news conference he would not rule out considering curtailment of the scheduled cost-of-living increases.

"I don't talk about what I would or would not veto until something reaches my desk," the president said. "But I think I would have to look at the situation and what I was faced with with regard to a possible congressional mandate."

During its successful re-election campaign last year, Reagan said he would not accept cuts in benefits for either current or future Social Security recipients.

Social Security and the president's rapid defense buildup have emerged as the most controversial elements of a debate over how to trim budget deficits that otherwise are expected to exceed $225 billion annually through the end of the decade.

Reagan is expected to submit his own budget to Congress early next month, including roughly $40 billion in spending cuts for the 1985 fiscal year.

But Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole of Kansas has begun an effort within the Senate GOP ranks to produce an alternative budget, one that can meet the president's original goal of reducing deficits to less than $100 billion by 1988.

Dole led a group of Republican senators to the White House on Thursday for a meeting with presidential Chief of Staff James A. Baker III. Two lawmakers who attended voiced support for considering changes in the Social Security inflation increase as part of the overall deficit-reduction effort.

"How are you going to effect changes that need to be made in civil service retirement, military retirement, railroad retirement, congressional retirement, if we don't treat the Social Security the same as we treat the others," said Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa.

Freshman Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a strong supporter of Reaganomics, added, "I personally cannot deny a COLA (cost-of-living adjustment) to veterans and federal retirees and railroad retirees and at the same time vote to pay it for Social Security. We've got to treat everybody fairly."

Disputed Star Wars has Pacific house

KWAJALEIN, Marshall Islands (AP) — Star Wars comes to Earth on this remote Pacific outpost of American high technology and top secrecy.

The work done on Kwajalein's sandy atoll — on anti-missile systems, deep-space tracking and the MX missile — is at the heart of the U.S.-Soviet standoff over new weaponry, especially over the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI), better known as Star Wars, President Reagan's program for developing advanced anti-missile weapons.

Last June, Kwajalein's elite brigade of civilian scientists reached a Star Wars plateau, destroying an incoming dummy nuclear warhead in space with their own "killer" missile.

The U.S. Army officers who run Kwajalein said they are preparing for new tryouts of defensive technology within two years.

"This is the unique place the United States has for SDI testing. It has the instrumentation, the facilities and the people," said Maj. Mike Maurer, research and development coordinator for Kwajalein Missile Range.

But two obstacles — one big, the other small — may stand in their way.

The big one, the Soviet Union, wants to put a cap on space and other defensive weaponry. That will be decided in new superpower negotiations, the groundwork for which was laid in this week's Geneva talks.

The smaller obstacle is the local Marshallese people, who want to ban the test site's operations. The 5,000 or so Kwajalein landowners, packed together, out of the way, on a single slum of an island, want a better financial deal from Washington. That issue may be decided in the U.S. courts.

Kwajalein is a 60-mile-long loop of 98 islets ringing a huge lagoon in the central Pacific, just north of the equator.

It exploded into the headlines 41 years ago, during World War II, when U.S. Army and Marine units stormed ashore to wrest it from the Japanese in a bloody battle.

The installation has an American population of about 3,000. Only 30 are military personnel. The rest are engineers, technicians and other civilian workers and their spouses and children. Most live on mile-square Kwajalein, the biggest little island in the atoll that bears its name.

"Kwaj" could be a small town lifted from mid-America with its two 9-hole golf courses and a pair of swimming pools, high school proms and a VFW, rock on the radio and seven brands of beer in the bar.

But the difference is clear. This town's Bermuda-clad workers are experts in radar, optics and missile guidance; men and women from MIT, RCA, GTE and Kentron who pore over pages of mathematical formulas as they commute daily to the atoll's island facilities aboard Army aircraft.

Thai-Cambodian zone may be demilitarized

BAN SANGAE, Thailand (AP) — Thailand and Vietnam agreed Thursday to establish a demilitarized zone along a stretch of the Thai-Cambodian frontier after the presence of Vietnamese troops on Thai territory nearly provoked a conflict, a Thai general said Thursday.

Maj. Gen. Salva Sriphen, commander of Thailand's eastern task force, told The Associated Press that a 22-yard-wide strip on each side of the border near Ampil "will be our DMZ."

Vietnamese officers agreed to the zone Thursday when they decided to pull their troops back from the border, ending a 24-hour confrontation with Thai forces, he said.

"Everything was put calmly and peacefully" to the Vietnamese, he said. Salva said the Vietnamese said they were misinformed as to the exact location of the border.

"We just want to avoid any possibility of our territory being in dispute," Salva said. Once the border location was settled, Salva said, the Vietnamese troops cleared out of an area 1.2 miles long, running north and south along an anti-tank ditch.

Thai soldiers then started placing orange flags and other markers along the border line, Salva said.

Vietnamese forces in Cambodia had overrun the Cambodian rebels' headquarters base at Ampil on Monday and Tuesday. They forced thousands of fighters of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front to flee.

After securing the camp, where more than 20,000 Cambodian refugees had lived a week ago, unnamed Vietnamese officers appeared on the bridge at Ban Sangae on Wednesday and told a Thai sergeant that Cambodian territory extended to the eastern side of a ditch the Thais had dug under the bridge.

The Thais insisted the ditch was well inside their territory.

Reinforced Thai forces went on full alert Wednesday at what Bangkok viewed as an incursion by Vietnamese forces into its territory. Protests are pending at the United Nations over alleged Vietnamese incursions into Thailand.

1,000 officials, Castro visit Nicaraguan inauguration

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A thousand government officials and foreign dignitaries gathered on the shore of Lake Managua Thursday afternoon for the inauguration of Daniel Ortega as president of this leftist-ruled nation.

Cuban President Fidel Castro was one of the leaders who came to Nicaragua to attend the lake-side ceremony at the huge new amphitheater built for the occasion.

Castro, whose communist government has been a chief supporter of the Sandinista revolution since its inception, arrived Thursday morning from Havana.

As the Cuban leader stepped from his Soviet-made TU-154 Cubana Airlines jet at Managua's Sandino International Airport, Ortega embraced him warmly.

Castro's arrival had been rumored for days, but the Nicaraguan government had declined to confirm the planned visit.

It was Castro's first trip to Nicaragua since the celebration of the first anniversary of the Sandinista revolution in July 1980, and it clearly signaled his continued strong support for the leftist government.

Before leaving the airport in a government car, Castro said he felt "great satisfaction in being in Nicaragua again." He said he wanted to "send a fraternal and warm greeting to the Nicaraguan people."

Ortega's supporters said his election Nov. 4 was the first time in almost half a century that Nicaraguans had freely chosen a president, although he faced only token opposition.

The chief opposition, a coalition called the Nicaraguan Democratic Coordinate, refused to participate, saying conditions allowed by the Sandinista government made it impossible to have a fair and open campaign.

President Reagan called the election a "Soviet-style sham."

For the Sandinistas, the election and Ortega's inauguration were seen as crucial to gaining international acceptance of a regime that came to power at the point of a gun.

Their revolutionary triumph, on July 19, 1979, toppled the government of Anastasio Somoza and ended 42 years of rule by the rightist strongman and his family. Ortega, who took up the revolutionary banner as a teenager, began to emerge as first among equals in the Sandinista movement after it toppled the Somoza regime. He was named junta coordinator in 1981 and chosen earlier this year by the directorate as the Sandinista presidential candidate. Almost immediately after coming to power, the Sandinistas found their own regime under attack.

4 plead innocent of harboring fugitive

SEATTLE (AP) — Three men and one woman arrested during FBI raids on Whidbey Island last month pleaded innocent Thursday to charge of harboring a fugitive.

Three of the four also pleaded innocent to various firearms charges.

During a 20-minute hearing held under tight security, U.S. Magistrate John Weinberg set a trial date of Feb. 25 for the four before U.S. District Court Judge Walter McGovern.

Pleading innocent were George Randolph Ducey, 34, Spokane; Ian Roy Stewart, 21, hometown unknown; Robert Merki, 50, and his wife Sharon Merki, 47, formerly of the Orville area. All were charged with conspiracy to harbor a fugitive and actually harboring a fugitive. All but Stewart were charged with firearms violations.

The four were arrested by the FBI during a 36-hour siege that climaxed in a shootout and fire in which Robert J. Matthews died. Matthews was accused in the slaying of an FBI agent and in a Seattle armored car robbery.

Polish officer denies having priest killed

TORUN, Poland (AP) — A secret police colonel testified he talked with a subordinate about gathering "compromising" material on the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, but denied Thursday he instigated the kidnap and murder of the priest.

Col. Adam Pietruszka, one of four Polish security officers present in the abduction and slaying of Popieluszko last October, denied accusations by co-defendant

Capt. Grzegorz Piotrowski that he had told Popieluszko the priest's abduction had high-level support in the Interior Ministry.

Pietruszka said his discussions with Popieluszko were limited to proposals to watch the priest's activities.

"There were never any suggestions or recommendations that physical force be used," the 47-year-old colonel testified.

Pietruszka accused Popieluszko of making "slandorous statements" by alleging that he had promised Popieluszko and his subordinates they would not be prosecuted.

Popieluszko was one of the most outspoken supporters of the outlawed Solidarity free trade union in the Polish Roman Catholic clergy.

Peace Corps seeks 10,000 volunteers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Peace Corps, kicking off the biggest specialized recruiting drive in its 24 years, on Thursday asked 10,000 American young adults to volunteer, pledging to send "the best and the brightest" of them to Africa to fight famine.

The first 600 volunteers will leave for Africa as early as this spring and summer to meet a shortage of agriculture specialists among the 2,500 Peace Corps workers already serving on the continent.

The other successful applicants will be part of a 10-year program to improve the foundations of African farming.

Because the Peace Corps was kicked out of Ethiopia in 1977 by the Marxist government, none of the volunteers will be sent to that country, where an estimated 7 million people are reported starving.

The purpose of the recruiting drive is to prevent future "Ethiopia" in two dozen

African countries where the agency is welcome.

Deer Creek Mine once again open

ORANGEVILLE, Utah (AP) — The Deer Creek Mine, closed when fire killed 27 miners in the adjacent Wilberg Mine Dec. 19, was reopened Thursday and was expected to reach full production within a few days, Emery Mining Co. officials said.

Emery spokesman Bob Henrie said in all, 350 miners were called back from a three-week furlough.

None of them were among the 244 Wilberg miners laid off last week, he said.

Company officials had said when they announced the Wilberg layoff that union contract provisions made it unlikely any of the Wilberg miners would soon find jobs at other central Utah coal mines operated by Emery.

Emery runs several coal properties for Utah Power & Light Co., which depends on the coal to produce electricity.

Henrie said limited production was expected to resume sometime Thursday at the Deer Creek Mine. Full production could resume by week's end.

Explosion kills 4, leaves others buried

LONDON (AP) — An explosion, possibly caused by leaking gas, wrecked a luxury apartment house in south London Thursday. Officials said four bodies were found in the rubble, and seven people could still be trapped.

An elderly woman was heard pleading for help and pulled from under the wreckage, but officials said there was little hope for the others believed buried.

Reagan's 'game' makes sense

NEW YORK (AP) — The game of musical chairs being played in the Reagan administration makes sense if you concede that quality players will be more important than the positions they fill on the team.

That, says an authority on personnel matters, is why Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and White House chief of staff James Baker III can exchange jobs without either having developed specific experience to qualify them.

The game is often played in the corporate world, said Eugene Jennings, with top executives being placed into slots in the existing structure not because of specific expertise but in recognition of general astuteness and competency.

Often, said Jennings, a professor at Michigan State University, "we see chief financial officers being made chief administrative officers, and administrative officers becoming chief financial officers."

The goal, he said, generally is to retain people who are invaluable to the corporation's chief executive officer and his goals.

In the White House situation, said Jennings, "Ronald Reagan has so much riding on his second term as president that he cannot afford to break in new people — people who have not been tested and trusted in the past."

That other important personnel changes should be taking place in the administration at the same time does not surprise Jennings.

In the latter situation, Jennings explained, team members want to gain distance from an administrative fiasco or failure, and they will leave simply to put distance between them and their chief.

"But in the case of a highly popular and historically powerful chief, such as Reagan, the restlessness is largely due to a desire among players to maximize their advantages by 'leveraging' into more desirable positions."

Academy tenants must move

By STEVEN J. HANSEN
Senior Reporter

Tenants of Academy Square received a little extra mail in the form of an eviction notice that was unfortunate, but not surprising. Tenants have less than two months to pack up and make room for the Allen Group to renovate the vintage building.

Yet a visit to the square will find no evidence of packed boxes or perused classified ads for rentable space, even though those residing in the building have been asked to vacate the premises by Feb. 28.

Stan Miller, representative of the Allen Group who bought the building, told the Deseret News the notices were sent in December to give the tenants ample time to find another place to set up shop. Unfortunately, some of the tenants say they have nowhere to go.

Cari Brimhall, spokesman for the Provo Special Olympics, which has its office in the square, said, "Things are up in the air. We haven't made other arrangements. We have no idea where we will go."

Brimhall said the present office was situated in a perfect location and there is hope the organization can remain there until after the summer games. A footnote on the group's notice indicated the "desire to stay beyond" the February deadline would be feasible.

Although things may look grim for the tenants, a representative of the former owner of the building, Security Agencies Limited, said the new owners have given the occupants more time to settle than is required by law.

Myrie Astrophe said it was inevitable.

Boy reunited with his family

SCITUATE, R.I. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy who was missing from his California home for nearly two years saw his photograph on television during a movie about missing children but was told he would be locked away if he tried to contact his family, police said today.

Bobby Smith, who was reunited with his father Wednesday after being found in a Providence apartment, saw his photograph last April during the movie "Adam," said Lt. Richard Wheeler. The youth, who was missing for 21 months, wanted to go home, but was told by David R. Collins that he would spend the rest of his life locked up somewhere if he tried to telephone, he said.

"The boy was hoodwinked into believing that if he tried to get back to anyone he knew he would be locked away for the rest of his life," Wheeler said.

Collins, 55, was being held on charges of first-degree sexual assault and being a fugitive from justice.

Meanwhile, Wheeler said police were investigating whether Collins, who had "several" snapshots of other boys, was involved in other missing child cases.

The photographs were being sent to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, in Washington, D.C., to see if they matched pictures of other missing children, Wheeler said.

Bobby, who was found Monday, joined in a tearful, silent embrace with his father on a snow-covered field behind Rhode Island State Police headquarters on Wednesday.

able those in the building would have to move because the fate of the building wound down to the options of renovation by a new owner or leveling by a bulldozer.

Alfonso Flores, a free-lance illustrator and part-time faculty member at BYU, said he is unhappy the transfer of ownership will result in a move for the artists. "For us this is a great place," especially when a person is without money, he said. "Where are we going to go, where the rent is not outrageous?"

Above and beyond the attractive low rent, Alfonso regrets he must forsake the unique surrounding of the square which he said contributes to his artistic expression. "The building has a spirit and integrity most modern buildings don't have. I'm attached to this place. There's a certain thing that motivates and inspires."

Marvin Payne, performing artist, songwriter and playwright, a resident of eight months at the square said his eviction notice was the "greatest surprise" of his life. "When I moved in... I had the idea I would be here for decades," he said.

Payne, whose studio was filled with large, permanent-looking recording equipment, said he did not realize the new owners would renovate extensively. Thinking he had made his contribution to the renovating effort, Payne hoped his completely renovated nook in the massive complex would be spared of up and coming remodeling.

"I knew there would have to be heating, plumbing and electrical repairs," Payne said. "I guess I was too naive to envision what extensive renovating there would be."

Tenants of Provo's Academy Square have less than two months to move out of the historic site. The square was recently sold to new owners who plan to renovate it.

Flores said he hoped resident artists would be able to return following the building's reconstruction. "I had the understanding the new owners would sponsor the arts," he said. "I don't know if they will change their minds as they go... but, if I were a millionaire, I would devote the building to art."

However, Payne has little hope in returning to the square once he leaves. Moving back rent will be "impossible" since rent will be eight times what it is now. Nobody dealing with art will be able to pay the rent, he said.

Ferguson may not re-run

Provo's mayor may join the private sector

It has been a tumultuous year on the state political scene. Utahns have opened the door to a Republican governor for the first time in 20 years and have survived a vicious congressional race. But the upheaval may not be over yet for Provo citizens. Mayor Jim Ferguson contemplates the possibility of ending his stint as the city's top official when his second term ends this year.

"I'll either make the decision to continue as mayor or I'll get out into the private sector," Ferguson said. "Sometimes those kinds of things are opportunities gained and opportunities lost. It's not a matter of what you think you would like at that point in time but what you are allowed to do because of the circumstances."

The circumstances may be unfavorable for re-election to a third term, the mayor said. "I think it begins to be somewhere about that third term that no matter how well you're doing the constituency thinks it's time for a change."

That belief influenced Ferguson to run for lieutenant governor in 1984. He said he saw it as an opportunity to expand his horizons, but with that option lost (he and running mate Ken Gardner were beaten in the primaries) the Democrat plans to investigate the possibility of returning to the private sector.

"It's better for me to go to the private sector, that might preclude me from going back to the public sector. I know plenty of people who were very good in the public sector and then for one reason or another ran for public office and were not elected or chose not to run and we never saw them again."

"I'll leave my options open. This was just a good challenge and a good opportunity, and it's been a good experience."

MAYOR JIM FERGUSON

Whatever the future may hold for the mayor, he said he has no regrets about the past. Although he lost the race for lieutenant governor, he said he learned some valuable lessons during the campaign.

It is not easy to run a state-wide campaign, he said. Candidates must place a tremendous amount of trust in their campaign workers, who make many important decisions.

"You don't have quite the same control over your campaign when running for state office as you do when running for local office."

But Ferguson said he does not regret his decision to run. "I felt it was an opportunity to get some exposure at the best and at the worst to take a little time out of my schedule to do it."

The mayor isn't one to be discouraged by setbacks. After all, the odds against him when he first ran for mayor in Provo were enough to make anyone wince.

Ferguson is a Democrat in a city said to be one of the greatest Republican strongholds in the nation. To top that, he is a non-Mormon surrounded by staunch members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

One might wonder how he pulled out an election in the first place, but Ferguson does not consider it a mystery — it's just good politics. "I can't say I haven't been troubled at times with certain things the national Democratic party has done, but I've also had equal concerns about the Republican party."

"What it really boils down to is that at some point in time you have to make a decision to be either in or out of the activity. You're a participant or an observer."

That decision for Ferguson had a lot to do with the fact that he was raised as a Democrat in the South. "What I perceive the Democratic party to be isn't a matter of reality as much as perception. If you perceive an organization to be something good, then you want to be a part of it. It's not the identity, it's the image."

"I perceive the Democratic party to hold to the kinds of values that are important to me. I don't perceive them to be anti-life or pro-abortion. If I did I couldn't be a Democrat."

But tradition is not immune to change, and the mayor said it wouldn't necessarily take a miracle to convert him to Republicanism.

7 Democrats skirmish for party chairmanship

WASHINGTON (AP)—The job has little power and the customary reward for success is to get fired, yet seven Democrats are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars campaigning for their party chairmanship. How come?

Not all that many years ago, their costly campaign would have made sense. A national party chairman was a power in Washington. "Hell, back in the Roosevelt time if you wanted a pardon you went to see the party chairman," said John White, who served as Democratic Party chairman in less heady days.

Presidential pardons weren't the only goodies dispensed by party leaders, who also controlled thousands of federal jobs.

"If you wanted a government contract," said White, "you went to see the chairman before, and if you got the contract, you sure as hell went to see him afterwards."

That kind of raw power is gone from the both the Democratic and Republican party headquarters.

"Today," says White, "it comes down to two things: ideology and ego."

Then who'd want the job? Seven Democrats think it's worth fighting for.

They talk about the need to rebuild the party, after two successive landslide beatings at the hands of Ronald Reagan, and to change the message to fit the mood of America in the 1980s. No doubt they are sincere, their dreams of being the savior of the party are genuine. But will it work out that way?

"I don't know why we want to do it," said Richard Richards, who was Republican Party chairman during the first two years of the Reagan administration. "If you really like politics and you like the organizational work — that was really what I liked the job."

"I didn't care so much for the ceremonial parts of the job."

"I wanted to be national chairman for many years," recalled Richards. He's been out for two years now and said, "I missed it for about 10 minutes one day."

Egypt intends to ask Reagan for $1 billion in aid increases

WASHINGTON (AP)—Egypt is asking the United States for a nearly $1 billion increase in economic and military aid for fiscal 1986, the Egyptian prime minister told the Washington Post in an article published Thursday.

The additional money would boost U.S. assistance to Egypt to $3.15 billion, the newspaper said.

Prime Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said Egypt needs the extra money to compensate for expected decline in oil sales, tourism, and remittances from Egyptians working abroad.

"Economic cooperation with the United States is one of the main goals and means to compensate for these difficulties," Ali told the Post.

He said Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak plans to discuss the request for a nearly one-third increase in U.S. assistance with President Reagan and other officials during a visit to the United States in March.

Egypt currently receives about $1 billion in economic and surplus food aid and $1.2 billion in military assistance from the United States.

For fiscal 1986, beginning next Oct. 1, Ali said his country is seeking $1.2 billion in economic assistance, $1.7 billion in military aid, and $250 million for the surplus grain import program.

According to the Post, Israel also requested substantial hikes in assistance, both for the current year and for fiscal 1986.

Schroeder slims down

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—William Schroeder has slimmed down from more than 200 pounds to 183 while recovering from his artificial heart implant and is walking the equivalent of two blocks a day through hospital corridors, officials said.

Schroeder will build up his daily walking program during his comeback from the three strokes he suffered on Dec. 13, hospital spokesman Bob Irvine said.

Schroeder's weight has dropped partly because water loss common after surgery. The 62-year-old Jasper, Ind., man weighed more than 200 pounds at one point after the implant.

He remains in satisfactory condition at Humana Hospital Audubon, where the operation was performed Nov. 25.

Wendell Cherry, president of Humana Inc., told a meeting of Louisville business leaders that it's too early to determine the costs and benefits of the experimental implant program.

Afterward, Cherry said the procedure's biggest single cost involves the length of hospitalization.

Cougars go West, get tested by WAC

By MARK CARPENTER
Asst. Sports Editor

The Cougar basketball team will take its 1-1 WAC record on a western swing of the conference this week, tackling the San Diego State Aztecs Saturday and then crossing the Pacific to face the Hawaii Rainbow Warriors Monday.

With a perfect conference record of 3-0 after a road trip to face Wyoming and Air Force, coupled with a win last night over Utah, the 11-2 Aztecs are the team to beat in the early going of the WAC race.

The Aztecs are led by junior guard Anthony Watson, who averages 16.2 points per game, and center Leonard Allen with 12.1 points per contest.

The strength of this year's Aztec team is balance. Without last year's WAC Player of the Year, Michael Cage and his 24.5 point scoring average, the Aztec team has spread the scoring punch among six players.

In addition to Watson and Allen, forward Michael Kennedy hits for 9.5 points per game. Andre Ross scores 9.0. John Martens adds 8.3, and Creon Dorsey averages 7.9 a game.

BYU carries an overall record of 7-6 into the contest with San Diego State. The Cougars are led in scoring by forward Timo Saarelainen with a 21.3 point average.

Early on in the season the Cougars struggled, mainly because of sickness and injury, but that seems to have changed. "We are in better physical condition, except for Timo, than at any other time this season," said BYU head coach Ladell Andersen. "We are also more experienced, which should help us."

Saarelainen, bothered recently by a knee injury, has showed progress, as evidenced by his 20-point effort against New Mexico last week.

The Rainbow Warriors also carry a balanced scoring attack on their 1985 squad. Five Hawaii players average more than 10 points per contest, led by the 16.5 scoring of guard Andre Morgan.

Hawaii carries a 4-8 overall record into the weekend action, including road losses to Colorado State and Wyoming in the opening round of WAC play.

orado State have jumped out to early leads in the WAC, the conference title is still up for grabs. Five of the nine WAC teams enter this weekend of play with 1-1 conference records.

Texas-El Paso coach Don Haskins picked CSU to win the WAC in the annual coaches poll, but now feels SDSU has a good shot.

"San Diego State has the better team right now," Haskins said. "Their chemistry is better."

Still, Haskins admits, "The WAC race is wide open."

"I couldn't see a big one, a big two or a big three," said Andersen of the WAC in preseason. "A lot of superstars passed out of our league last year. Anyone has a shot."

"We have to be prepared and ready to play each game," said Andersen. "I think we'll have to win 12 or 13 in the league to win it (the WAC championship)."

The game against Hawaii will be broadcast live on KUTV (Channel 2) Monday at 10:35 p.m.

Cougars will face No. 5 UCLA

The BYU women's gymnastics team will meet the highly-ranked UCLA Bruins tonight in the Smith Fieldhouse at 7.

In preseason polls, UCLA was ranked fifth in the nation. The Bruins finished second in the nation last year. This will be the first dual meet between the two teams.

On Saturday the Cougars will meet Boise State in a rematch. Earlier this year the Cougars prevailed over the Broncos. In the match the Cougars recorded their highest score of the year 180.7. The 180.7 score from last month's meeting with the Broncos gave the Cougars possession of the fourth highest total in the country this year.

The Bruins are led by All-American Trina Tinti. Tinti placed 16th in the all-around phase of last year's national championship competition. UCLA will also receive strong performances from All-America selections Karen McMullin and Janet Ferrari. McMullin placed 4th on the beam and 8th on the bars in last year's nationals and holds the UCLA record on the beam with a score of 9.85.

BYU will be led by freshman Gina Hansen, who currently is ranked 16th nationally in the all-around.

AP names Lewis Athlete of Year

Carl Lewis, winner of four Olympic track and field gold medals, was named The Associated Press' Male Athlete of the Year for the second consecutive time, Wednesday. He is the third performer to win the honor two years in a row.

The 23-year-old Lewis was an overwhelming winner of the 1984 award. Quarterback Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins was a distant second, and Boston College Quarterback Doug Flutie, the Heisman Trophy winner, finished third.

Jazz fall to Lakers, 120-112

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson, after missing two games with a finger injury, returned Thursday night to score 20 points and log 10 assists to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a 120-112 National Basketball Association victory over the Utah Jazz.

After leading 54-49 at halftime, the Lakers pulled away in the third quarter and led 88-72 going into the final period. The Jazz were never closer than 10 points until the final minute.

James Worthy scored 23 points to lead the Lakers, who won their 10th game in their last 11 starts.

SYNERGY IS: TRAINING

Just ask Dave Price. He'll tell you that job training at American Synergy means more than a smile and a pat on the back. Training means a week-long professional seminar taught by some of America's top job-training experts. At our expense. Just one reason why Dave will be back this summer. So will many more college students.

American Synergy is an established energy products company (insulation and more) based in Provo, but working primarily in California. That's because the California utility companies have made the purchase of our products financially attractive for consumers.

As a result, it's also financially attractive for American Synergy representatives. Very attractive. Our reps will make between $7,000 and $15,000 in 17 weeks this summer. Some will make considerably more than that.

Actually, what we offer is more of a service opportunity than a sales job. The reason is simple. People are already receptive to our top-notch products. They recognize the need for them. So, you win big, and your customers win big.

And the great training isn't just a coincidence. You see, American Synergy is a subsidiary of Eagle Systems International, the company that wrote the book on effective summer job training.

In fact, the know-how and career skills we'll teach you are often more valuable than your earnings. At least that's what past employees say. (In many instances, our training was the key to a very appealing job upon graduation.)

The excellent training is the key to the most immediate and tangible reward — the money. What you earn can easily support you all next year. In fine style.

But we won't force the job on you. There are plenty of interested people without doing that.

If you'd like to be part of that group, come attend a brief — and casual — meeting this Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the address shown below. Or call Jerry Johnson, 225-9000.

Former griddier trainers hired by Oregon State

By JAY RUYBALD
Senior Reporter

Two former BYU football coaches have been hired on to the staff of Dave Kragthorpe at Oregon State.

Garth Hall and Jim Paronto were named Tuesday to the staff along with Gary Knecht. Hall had been serving as the offensive coordinator at Tulane, a position he held for two years after having moved from BYU's staff where he coached the running backs and receivers for eight years. Paronto moves from the position he recently held as Coach LaVell Edwards' staff as the inside linebacker coach. He had been the linebacker coach the last two years of his four year stint here.

Hall will serve as the offensive coordinator for Kragthorpe, while Paronto will coach the running backs and special teams while overseeing the kicking game.

As new football coaches for the Oregon State Beavers' program, Hall and Paronto will aid Kragthorpe in attempting to turn around a program that went 2-9 last season. Kragthorpe himself is new after moving from Utah State where he was the athletic director. Kragthorpe coached at BYU with Edwards for 10 years during the 1970s. He served in various positions under Edwards, including offensive coordinator, offensive line coach and assistant head coach.

Kragthorpe pointed out that last year's Beavers sported a good defense, but the offense was lacking. He plans to install a "wide open" BYU type offense.

On speaking about his newly hired assistants, Kragthorpe called Paronto a class individual and Hall a bright, young coach. He also noted he had worked with Hall for five years at BYU.

Paronto said his move to the Oregon State program was a professional one. "It (moving to the offensive side of coaching) is something I wanted to get back to."

He added that working as an assistant under Edwards was an outstanding experience, and BYU is a great place to be. He received his doctorate degree here.

"Coach Edwards is a great person and the staff is superb. It was a difficult decision," Paronto said.

BYU's athletic program could be totally devastated if an NCAA proposition is passed at the annual NCAA convention in Nashville, Tenn., next week.

The proposed amendment, known as Proposition 123, will not only affect BYU and other WAC schools, but every division IA college or university. The proposition, if passed, will terminate any exemption given to an athlete who leaves school to participate in religious or military service.

"No, we're not a little concerned about it," said BYU athletic director Glen Tuckett. "We're greatly concerned."

The convention which runs Monday through Wednesday will vote on the proposition and if it passes it will give athletes five years to use four years of athletic eligibility. The only exception would be if an athlete somehow was unable to attend school, said Tom Yeager, spokesman for the NCAA.

If there were circumstances beyond the control of the athlete, like hospitalization, and he or she were unable to attend school his eligibility would not be affected, Yeager said.

Currently an athlete can leave school to serve a religious mission or in the military and not lose any years of eligibility, but under Proposition 123 this would no longer be true.

The reason for the proposition is because of the elimination of the military draft, said WAC commissioner Joe Kearney. "One of the goals of the Eligibility Commission and staff is to get as many rules as consistent as they possibly can be."

Yeager echoed Kearney by saying, the proposition was proposed because military service is no longer required and religious service is not mandatory, Yeager said.

Although the proposition will probably be the most detrimental to universities like BYU with large numbers of return missionaries it was not specifically proposed to harm the Cougar athletic program, Yeager said.

The adoption of the proposition was discussed as far back as August in a council meeting of the division IA steering committee, he said.

Because the proposition would so greatly affect BYU there is much opposition to the idea. If Proposition 123 passes Tuckett says he will challenge it in court. "I think legally we could bring some things into play," he said.

The WAC is also opposed to the proposition. "Our conference has taken a position on it," Kearney said. "It would try to defeat it. We feel strongly enough to take a stand."

Although the proposition would hurt BYU drastically there is another amendment being considered that could help. Proposition 122 will also be discussed at the convention. It would allow an athlete a total of 10 semesters to use up his eligibility, Yeager said.

LaVell Edwards honored Thursday when named Coach of the year

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — LaVell Edwards, who led Brigham Young University to its first national championship, was voted Coach of the Year Thursday by the American Football Coaches Association.

Edwards, 64, won the honor in University Division I-A — the major college ranks — and was honored Thursday night along with three other winners at the Kodak Coach of the Year banquet winding up the AFCA's annual convention.

Edwards was also named as third vice president of the AFCA and will consequently become president of the organization in 1988.

Dave Arnold of Montana State was voted Coach of the Year in University

Division I-AA. The College Division I winner was Chan Gailey of Troy (Ala.) State, while Bob Reade of Augustana (Ill.) won for the second year in a row in College Division II.

The voting was done by the more than 2,400 AFCA members who attended the convention — the actual vote count, as usual, was not disclosed. Edwards, the Region 5 winner, won out over Joe Morrison of South Carolina, Jerry Claiborne of Kentucky, Leon Burtnett of Purdue and Jim Wacker of Texas Christian.

By defeating Michigan 24-17 in the Holiday Bowl, BYU became only the second major-league team in the past 80 years to post a 10-0 record.

THE SPRINGVILLE RED DEVILS MARCHING BAND

Red Devils seeking funds to get them to Washington

By MARGARET HAMMERLAND
Senior Reporter

The Springville High School Red Devil Marching Band has received an invitation to march in the Inaugural Parade in Washington, D.C., but before the band members can pack their instruments and head East, they must raise $60,000 to cover transportation and housing costs.

Band director Bryan Tobler, a 1972 graduate of BYU, said it will cost $30,000 to cover transportation costs alone.

Members of the band have been going door to door throughout the city of Springville on a two-week fund-raising drive. They are also sponsoring various bake sales and garage sales.

According to Tobler, the students have raised more than $10,000 in their door-to-door campaign.

Springville Mayor Brent Haymond, who is in charge of the band's finances, is working to obtain donations from community businesses and is also in charge of large donations.

"Most of the money is being raised locally," Tobler said. "The community is most supportive. The students have been receiving contributions at almost every door."

The Springville band is one of only 25 marching bands in the United States that will participate in the Inaugural Parade.

Tobler said his first reaction was one of total disbelief when he received the news that his band had been chosen to march in the parade.

"It just happened," he said. "Things fell into place. We were very pleased with that."

The only other group from Utah that will take part in the inaugural activities is the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

The Springville band took first place in the BYU Rocky Mountain Band Competition this fall. Not only that, they have claimed first-place honors in every other competition they have entered this year, including Region Eight, Nebo Competition, Davis Competition and a competition in Pocatello for Utah and Idaho high school bands.

"This is a tremendous honor and responsibility to represent the state of Utah," Tobler said.

For the members of the band the trip itself, with the opportunity to visit the nation's historical sites, is one of the most exciting aspects of going to Washington, Tobler said. He also added the importance of being able to represent Springville and the state of Utah.

"We are pleased that the people in the community have so much pride in us," he said. "They've given us marvelous cooperation."

Gary Harding, father of one of the band members, is the man who was responsible for the idea of having the band participate in the parade. He contacted individuals and businesses to help raise funds to put together a portfolio shortly after Reagan's re-election. He sent the information to Washington before the inaugural committees were even formed.

"It didn't hurt to be wearing red, white and blue uniforms," Tobler said.

He also added that it didn't hurt to be from the same county as the number one college football team and Miss America.

When Tobler first took over as band director at Springville 13 years ago, the band had 11 members. There are now 82 members and a group of flag twirlers. The flag twirlers, who are under the direction of Patrice Boien, will also travel to Washington.

Sting will star as Dr. Frankenstein

NEW YORK (AP) — Sting, the rock singer turned movie actor, will star as Dr. Charles von Frankenstein in "The Bride," the latest film version of the classic monster story, according to People magazine.

"Dr. Frankenstein makes the wrong decisions in the end, goes mad and is pure evil. He's like us all, a victim of circumstances, but the architect of his own doom," Sting, the 35-year-old member of the rock band

Police, said in an interview in People magazine.

Sting, who won favorable reviews for his first movie role as a villain in the science-fiction epic "Dune," also has a part in "Plenty," which stars Meryl Streep and Sir John Gielgud.

Sting said he enjoys acting because "you get to express all those pent-up emotions. You can kill, run over people, shoot, behave like a monster and work them all out of your system."

Nancy denies having power to get administrators fired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan, whose influence may grow during her husband's second term as several of his longtime aides depart, said she doesn't get people in the administration fired — although she may try sometimes.

Interviewed for a cover story in this week's issue of Time magazine, Mrs. Reagan was quoted as saying, "I don't get people fired."

She called President Reagan "a soft touch" on personnel matters and acknowledged she occasionally has sought to overcome his well-known reluctance to dismiss those who don't serve him well.

In 1982 and again after his stunning electoral victory in November, Mrs. Reagan told her husband he should clear away the dead wood in the administration, the magazine reported.

"It was the obvious time to make changes," the first lady was quoted as saying of her most recent effort. "I was talking generally, not just the White House staff."

But she indicated Reagan has declined to go along.

Several of Reagan's longtime associates are leav-

Cougar fans get younger every day

There is no question in young Michael Wees' mind who the number one football team in America is. Michael is being held by his father, Brad, and his mother, Stephanie, Utah Valley Medical Center started to put BYU shirts on the newborns on Jan. 3, after the polls declared BYU national champions.

Butchers become 'traders' in attempt to change image

LONDON (AP)—British meat traders, worried that the grim image of butchers and slaughterhouses are turning their customers into vegetarians, are asking butchers to change their names and get rid of their blood-spattered aprons.

Meat Trades Journal editor Malcolm Starbrook, in an editorial, said words like apportion, slaughterhouse and butcher, "to us in the trade... are merely labels that describe a person or a factory."

"But what sort of images do these words conjure up to the public who see them used in sensational popular press headlines to describe everything from the Yorkshire Ripper to the aftermath of a bomb outrage?"

In addition, he said, "The blood-spattered whites of the workers strolling in front of the secretaries on their way to the offices is not going to help."

The meat journal held out some hope for the trade, however, noting that with bloodless supermarket packaging, there was "a growing away among younger meat-buyers from the concept that meat ever comes from an animal."

Y students get opportunity to earn theater arts credits for attending film festival

By GINA R. MARCUCCI COX
Asst. Lifestyle Editor

BYU theater students will have the rare opportunity to earn credit by going to the movies during the United States Film Festival, Jan. 18-27 in Park City.

The festival is the annual showcase for independently made films as well as Hollywood studio premieres.

"The festival is one of the top five in the United States and is considered to be the number one film festival for independent filmmakers," said Brian Sullivan, an assistant professor of theater and cinematic arts.

The Theater and Cinematic Arts Department is offering up to two credits to students who attend.

Sundance Institute is sponsoring the festival in Park City Jan. 18-27. Founded in 1980 by actor and director Robert Redford, the Sundance Institute is a national organization for filmmakers. Each year the institute supports both promising American film artists and motion picture projects which reflect the diversity found in American life.

The highlight of the festival is the Independent Film Competition where top dramatic and documentary filmmakers vie for honors and $2,500 in prize money.

Jury members for the dramatic entries are Bob Young, director, "The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez," Peter Biskind, editor, "American Film;" and

Mirra Bank director, "Enormous Changes at the Last Minute."

Jurors for the documentary category are Frederick Wiseman, director, "Hill Country;" D.A. Pennebaker, director, "Don't Look Back;" and Barbara Kopple, director, "Harlan County, USA."

The Independent Film Competition will include 24 films.

Dramatic entries include films such as Victor Nunez "A Flash of Green," Robby Roth's "Heartbreakers," Nell Cox's "The Roommate" and Joel Coen's "Blood Simple."

The documentary category includes works such as Joel Demott and Jeff Krenes "Seventeen," Robert Epstein's "The Times of Harvey Milk," and Tom Johnson and Lance Bird's "The World of Tomorrow."

For 1985, the festival has expanded to include an international showcase of films selected for their affinity to American independent work.

The international program will include Australian Lucas Stepanik's "Pebbles," Herzog's "Where Green Ants Dream" and Robert Altman's "Secret Honor."

The festival also offers seminars and workshops for filmmakers. The workshops include "Dilemmas of Finance," an overview of current production and will feature Ivan Passer demonstrating directorial techniques.

Printer future's good, industry consultant says

NEW YORK (AP)—The personal computer printer market will have an "explosive growth" during the next three years, an industry consultant predicts.

Dataseq, the market research firm, estimates shipments of standard personal computer printers will more than double by 1988.

According to Bill Murphy of Hewlett-Packard Co., the ability to offer customers faster, quieter and less expensive printers over the past year has resulted in a dramatic growth spurt in the marketplace.

Radar helps fight smugglers

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP)—Air Force and Navy equipment is helping the U.S. Customs service fight drug smugglers.

A radar, designed and built by Hughes Aircraft Co. for an Air Force fighter, has been installed in a U.S. Navy patrol aircraft to detect and track possible drug smuggling activities.

The radar can detect and track slow, small, low-flying aircraft that may be trying to smuggle contraband into the United States. The radar detects moving targets over land or sea and provides information to enable the Coast Guard or other government agencies to intercept suspects.

FLICK FLACK

The Daily Universe, under the title of "Flick Flack," publishes synopses of movies shown in local theaters and on campus. Movies listed are not necessarily endorsed by The Daily Universe.

BREAKIN' 2, ELECTRIC BOOGALOO (PG)—The sequel to last summer's "Breakin'," a film about break dancers in New York City. (violence)

CITY HEAT (PG-13)—Clint Eastwood and Burt Reynolds play a police detective and private eye who try to resolve a gang war in the 1930s. (violence, profanity)

DUNE (PG-13)—An adaptation of David Lynch's science fiction epic. Featuring Sting from the Police. The story is very complex, but the visual effects are interesting. (violence)

FALLING IN LOVE (PG-13)—Meryl Streep and Robert De Niro give their usual excellent performances in what is essentially a soap opera resembling David Lean's 1946 "Brief Encounter." Both play happily married characters who meet while commuting to Manhattan, and fall in love. (profanity)

FLAMINGO KID (PG-13)—Matt Dillon plays Jeffrey Willis, who comes of age while working at a ritzy Long Island beach resort during the summer. The Brooklyn teenager rubs shoulders with the upper-class and is taken under the wing of a wealthy card player. (violence, profanity, nudity)

JOHNNY DANGEROUSLY (PG-13)—Michael Keaton plays Johnny Kelly, a poor but honest young man who joins the mob to pay for his mother's pancreas operation and becomes a top criminal. He becomes a criminal genius who increases the mob's gross 23 percent and outmaneuvers the Japanese competition. (violence, profanity, nudity)

KARATE KID (PG)—A story about a frustrated boy who develops a funny and warm relationship with an old Japanese fix-it man and learns strength and self-discipline. (violence, profanity)

MICKI & MAUDE (PG-13)—Dudley Moore stars as Rob, who is happily married to Micki, a lawyer. Rob's having an affair with Maude, a cellist. Micki wants a career; Maude wants a husband, and Rob wants to be a father. Maude finds out she is pregnant and Rob marries her. But he soon learns that Micki is pregnant too. Rob is one man with two wives—expecting two babies. (profanity, nudity)

PINOCCHIO (G)—A Disney animation classic is back in all its glory, an enchanting tale.

PROTOCOL (PG)—Goldie Hawn plays a cocktail waitress who suddenly finds herself in a high-level job with the U.S. State Department. (violence, profanity, nudity)

RED FURY (PG)—This film was made on location in Utah. The story, set at the turn of the century, is of an Indian boy who is taken in by a white widower. When the man gives the boy his prize stallion, his neighbor, who wanted the horse, turns the town against him. (violence, profanity)

RUNAWAY (PG-13)—Tom Selick is a futuristic cop trying to stop a villain who programs domestic robots to kill. (violence, profanity, nudity)

STARMAN (PG)—Jeff Bridges, nominated for a Golden Globe award for his performance, plays an alien come to Earth in response to the messages sent into space on Voyager II. Movie has some good moments, especially between Bridges and co-star Karen Allen of "Raiders of the Lost Ark." (violence, profanity, nudity)

2010 (PG)—The sequel to "2001: A Space Odyssey" is more of an action picture than the original and has superb special effects.

Y debate team moves up to No. 2 ranking in nation

By NEIL BAIR
Senior Reporter

In a year that has seen the BYU football team attain its first national championship ever, there exists another team on campus doing nearly as well which has gone unnoticed.

Following successful tournament stints at USC and UCLA over the Christmas holidays, the BYU debate team has captured the No. 2 ranking in the nation, according to Nancy Rooker, director of forensics at BYU and coach of the debate team.

"The nation's debate teams are divided up into districts just as football and basketball teams are put into conferences," she said. "BYU is in District No. 9, one of the strongest districts in the nation. UCLA and Air Force (both members of the district) are national powers."

BYU is currently ranked behind UCLA, the nation's top-ranked team and last year's national champion.

"It's been a battle with UCLA for 10 years," added assistant coach Neil Orton.

"The BYU-UCLA rivalry in debate is similar to the Nebraska-Oklahoma games in college football," said team member John Rooker.

In a three-day, 23-team tournament held at UCLA last week, BYU placed three two-member teams in the top four, and five members finished in the top 10 in individual debates. Several team members were also given special individual awards.

Teams consisting of Karl Powell and Grant Erickson, Michelle Mallory and Shannon Poole, and Ron Wilkinson and Rooker each battled through octa- and quarterfinals before reaching the semifinals of the tourney. But an NCAA rule forbids any school from being represented by both teams in the finals of a debate tournament, so the competition was closed after the quarterfinals.

Poole and Wilkinson were each given individual honors for their efforts during the tournament. Poole, a freshman from Yucca, Calif., took second in junior persuasion speaking and impromptu speaking, while sophomore Wilkinson, of Orem, placed sixth in expository speaking.

Members of the BYU debate team, which is now ranked No. 2 in the nation, pose for a team shot.

BYU team members who finished in the top 10 out of 46 contestants for speaker awards were Erickson, a sophomore from Orem, who finished ninth; Mallory, a freshman from Yuba City, Calif., who finished eighth; and Powell, also an Orem sophomore, who placed sixth. Poole finished in fourth place and Rooker, a sophomore from Sandy, placed third.

In the USC tournament held Dec. 28-30, featuring schools such as the University of Florida, Florida State and the University of Miami (Fla.), the team of Powell-Erickson reached the quarterfinals before losing. Rooker placed ninth out of 50 debaters in individual competition.

BYU will also host two debate tournaments this semester. The first will be the Cougar Classic, Jan. 24-25, and the second is the Western Athletic Conference tournament on Mar. 19-20. Both will be held in the Harmon Building. BYU will also compete in the Great Salt Lake Debate Jan. 26-28 at Orson Spencer Hall, located on the University of Utah campus.

According to Rooker, tournament sponsors send invitations to universities around the country, with the tournament accommodating as many as 50 teams. Following eight preliminary rounds, teams advance according to their power rating. The power rating is similar to the way college football teams are ranked: who they've played, and how they have done against good competition.

Rooker also said students wishing to try out for this semester's debate team may meet in F202 JFAC on Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Irish teens to visit Utah

By TRACY KING
Universe Staff Writer

In an attempt to stop the violence in Northern Ireland, the Ulster Project was organized in 1975 to bring Irish teenagers to America for four weeks to experience religious and individual freedom.

This non-profit organization has eight operating centers east of the Mississippi. In 1985, Utah will become the ninth center for the Ulster Project, according to Judy Wight, an Orem resident responsible for bringing the Ulster Project to Utah.

These teenagers, with an equal number of Catholics and Protestants, males and females, are selected by their clergy and teachers for their leadership potential, Wight said.

Running in age from 14 to 16, the teenagers will live in host family homes, each family having an American teenage counterpart for the visitor to associate with.

Rev. Kerry Waterstone, pastor of St. Catherine's Anglican Church in Tullamore, Ireland, and founder of Ulster Project, said he feels strong about this project and its effect on the young people.

"It's had a long-term effect on the teens," Waterstone told the Salt Lake Tribune during a visit to the United States last July. "Not one of our 2,000 teens has ever been in trouble after he participated," he said.

Waterstone is convinced the project would not work in any other country other than the United States.

"There's a deep-rooted racial reaction—a gut response almost built into the teenagers that the Irish are very much a part of this country," said Waterstone. "There's a feeling that God has blessed America."

Coming to America is a cultural shock for most of the Irish teenagers because they do not comprehend the freedoms American teens take for granted, said Waterstone.

As graduation nears, you realize the importance of careful planning for a successful future. At Arizona Public Service Company, the largest utility in the state, that's also the spirit of our professionals. By joining us your knowledge and skills can become the power to shape tomorrow in one of the country's fastest growing regions.

We're recognized in the utility industry for our innovative projects in energy technology and our contribution to Arizona's progress. And to help young careers get started, we offer unique rotational training programs to recent graduates. For Electrical Engineers our Training and Orientation for New Engineers (TONE) program allows you to work closely with experienced professionals in the field.

Our representatives will be on campus during the spring to meet individuals with the abilities and enthusiasm to qualify for these exceptional opportunities. You're invited to attend a Group Session on January 24 at 5:00 PM at the Ernest L. Wilkinson Center ELWC, Room 376, for an informal presentation concerning careers with APS.

We'll provide information about the challenging energy projects we're involved in, our excellent salaries and benefits, and the recreational life-style you can find in the wide-open and beautiful Southwest.
